The Asian Turtle Program honoured for their contributions to wildlife protection

On the 14th of October 2015, Education for Nature – Vietnam (ENV) and its supporting partners, the United States Agency for International Development (USAID) and Freeland, hosted the second annual “Outstanding Achievement Awards for Wildlife Protection” ceremony to honour five law enforcement officers and two journalists for their significant contributions to the protection of wildlife in Vietnam. The ceremony also acknowledged official corporate and media partners, as well as notable contributions from civil society and the public.

The Asian Turtle Program (ATP) of Indo-Myanmar conservation (IMC) was very proud to receive an award on 14th October 2015 from ENV for its outstanding achievement awards for wildlife protection. We have always been happy to work with ENV as a close partner and the various national wildlife protection agencies in Vietnam who do all the hard work in then tracking down and bringing to justice those responsible for wildlife trade. Well done to everyone who is help make a difference and giving wildlife a chance.
